

Liam O'Connor was called to the Bar in 1995 and has practiced exclusively in criminal defence work for thirty years.

Liam was first a partner at the law firm of Pinkofsky, Lockyer, later Pinkofskys, and is presently at partner in the firm's latest reincarnation: Rusonik, O'Connor, Robbins, Ross and Angelini.

He has represented individuals on more than thirty charges of murder where no convictions for murder were obtained. He has conducted more than forty jury trials resulting in complete acquittals on all charges.

Liam has been a regular speaker with the Criminal Lawyers Association, the Ontario Bar Association, The Law Society of Ontario, local high schools and a host of other groups.

He has produced numerous practical papers on criminal matters for conferences that somehow rarely contain any case law.